Flood-Stevens.

Clarence Nathaniel Flood, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Flood of Oxford, and Maude Edith Stevens of Waterville, were married, Wednesday, at high noon, at their new home, 13 Pine street, Winslow, where the young couple will reside for the future.

The single ring service was used, and Rev. A. D. Dodge was the officiating clergyman. The bride was attended by her sister, Augusta M. Stevens, and the best man was Charles R. Flood, brother of the groom.

The home was decorated with evergreens and ferns and the ceremony was performed under an arch of evergreens and wild flowers.

The bride wore white nun's veiling trimmed with pink lace. She carried a bouquet of pinks. The bridesmaid wore a blue landsdown trimmed in cream point lace.

After the ceremony a wedding luncheon was served and a reception held. The bride is now known to have her residence of 10 years in Waterville. She is a graduate of Coburn Classical Institute and has been an efficient teacher in the Myrtle street school for the past eight years.

Mr. Flood was graduated from Colby in the class of 1905 and is a member of the Phi Delta Theta fraternity. He is at present principal of the Winslow high school.

Manures and Crops.

B. Walker McKee of Fryeburg says in the Bulletin:—We have found dry sawdust the best possible absorbent for use in barn and stable. Have raised potatoes on farm manures, that were used to top the cars in shipping. The last load drawn was pronounced perfectly free from any indications of roughness or rot. Barn and stable manure mixed and tramped will not ferment. Such manure stored in barn cellars will not leach. Manure for hoed crops is always plowed under the green sward, then the lad is again plowed for oats, so manure is again thoroughly mixed with the soil. The home mixing of chemicals seems much to be desired, but there is a vast amount of education necessary before it will be generally practiced. He who inaugurates a system of purchasing chemicals for cash and teaches the farmers the benefits thereof, will be a great benefactor. Plowing under green crops is not a success here. The crops should be stored and fed to farm animals. The following is a good rotation of crops for five years: corn, oats, land seeded to grass and clover, three years in grass.

Officers elected at the annual meeting of the Oxford County medical association at Rumford Falls for the ensuing year:

- Pres.—Dr. H. L. Bartlett, Norway.
- Sec. Treas.—Dr. W. P. Hutchins, Rumford Falls.
- Lat. V. Pres.—Dr. J. G. Littlefield, South Paris.
- 2d V. Pres.—Dr. T. W. Morse, Canton.
- Executive Com.—Dr. E. F. Fryeburg, Norway.
- F. E. Wheel of Rumford Falls and H. R. Parris of Oxford.

Sudden Deaths, Heart Failure and Paralysis Are Caused by Poisonous Uric and Rheumatic Acids.

The Rheumatic person is skeptical regarding the claims of almost any remedy advertised as a cure for Rheumatism and one can scarcely blame him for being so. All the plasters and liniments combined never actually cure Rheumatism. It is sure to persist out somewhere else. The only true way to cure Rheumatism is to take the Uric Acid system for as long as the Uric and Rheumatic Acid remains in the blood, one is never entirely free from trouble. It seeks out the kidneys, renders it inert and harmless and drives it out of the body. This is the Uric Acid system. It is composed of the Uric Acid and the Rheumatic Acid. It is the only true way to cure Rheumatism. It is the only true way to cure Rheumatism. It is the only true way to cure Rheumatism.

The chief reason that Uric-O is such a wonderful cure for Rheumatism is, that it is designed and put out for Rheumatism and Rheumatism only. It is composed of perfect antitoxins for the rheumatic acid poison in the system. It is the only true way to cure Rheumatism. It is the only true way to cure Rheumatism. It is the only true way to cure Rheumatism.

Uric-O is sold by druggists at 75c and $1.00 the bottle, but if you still feel skeptical about its efficacy you can test it free of charge by cutting out this advertisement and sending same, together with your name, to the person also the name of your druggist, to the Smith Drug Company, Syracuse, N. Y., and they will send you a sample bottle. Do not let any one who write and say they have never used Uric-O, and want to test it thoroughly, and will agree to take it systematically according to directions, they frequently give a regular 75c bottle free.

Uric-O is sold and recommended in Norway by the Noyes Drug Store.

Health and the Business Woman.

"If a woman of average ability can keep her health she will be a success in life. She has a fair amount of perseverance and capacity, but the point is that the average woman neglects her health. She is shamefully," said the woman physician, whose hobby is the observance of the natural laws of health rather than tonics and medical prescriptions.

The commonest ailments of girls who work in shops and offices are indigestion, headache, depression of spirits and anemia, and these are the result not of overwork, but of neglect or carelessness. The most important thing for the girl who has to work hard during the day is a good night's rest. Eight or nine hours sleep should be had regularly, and if a nap of some five minutes can be obtained after getting home from work so much the better.

The woman who knows how to rest has grasped a fact that will make her the superior of clever women, for it will enable her to work harder without breaking down, says the Portland Express. Rest means the complete relaxation of body and mind, and to rest properly it is necessary to lie down, let the muscles relax and the brain become quiet and free from all worrying thought.

Women who read a sedentary life require three regular meals a day, and these meals should be nourishing, simple and easily digested. For breakfast, brown bread and butter, cocoa or milk and eggs in some form make the right kind of meal which to start the day's work, and the girl who hastily moves a piece of toast, washed down by strong tea, has no time but herself to blame when the inevitable breakdown comes.

Light suppers, and luncheons consisting only of tea and sweets, must be given a wide berth by the girl who wants to take care of her health. It is impossible for her to do her best work if she suffers from indigestion and headache, for constant languor and depression that always attend them will dampen even the most enthusiastic worker.

Besides rest and diet fresh air and exercise must be carefully considered. It is a good plan to walk at least a part of the way to one's work, even if it should not amount to more than a mile a day, and it is absolutely necessary to sleep with the bedroom window open all the year round. Whenever exercise cannot be had out of doors, ten minutes night and morning should be given to indoor exercise, and the simplest movements of the arms and body, either with or without dumb bells, will answer the purpose.

For developing the chest and keeping in good condition generally, breathing exercises are invaluable, and for these it is only necessary to stand in an open window and take long, deep breaths, the shoulders thrown well back and the arms hanging loosely. One should rest this sort of eating, sleeping and resting will make an immense difference to the woman who is nervous, exhausted, and if conscientiously followed for six or eight weeks it will mean renewed health and increased interest in work.

There Was No Honey there.

They were newly married and on a honeymoon trip. They put up at a sky scraper hotel in New York City. The bridegroom felt indisposed and the bride said she would slip out and do a little shopping. In due time she returned and tripped eagerly up to her room and a little awed by the number of doors that looked alike. But she was sure of her own and tapped gently on the panel.

"I'm back, honey, let me in," she whispered.

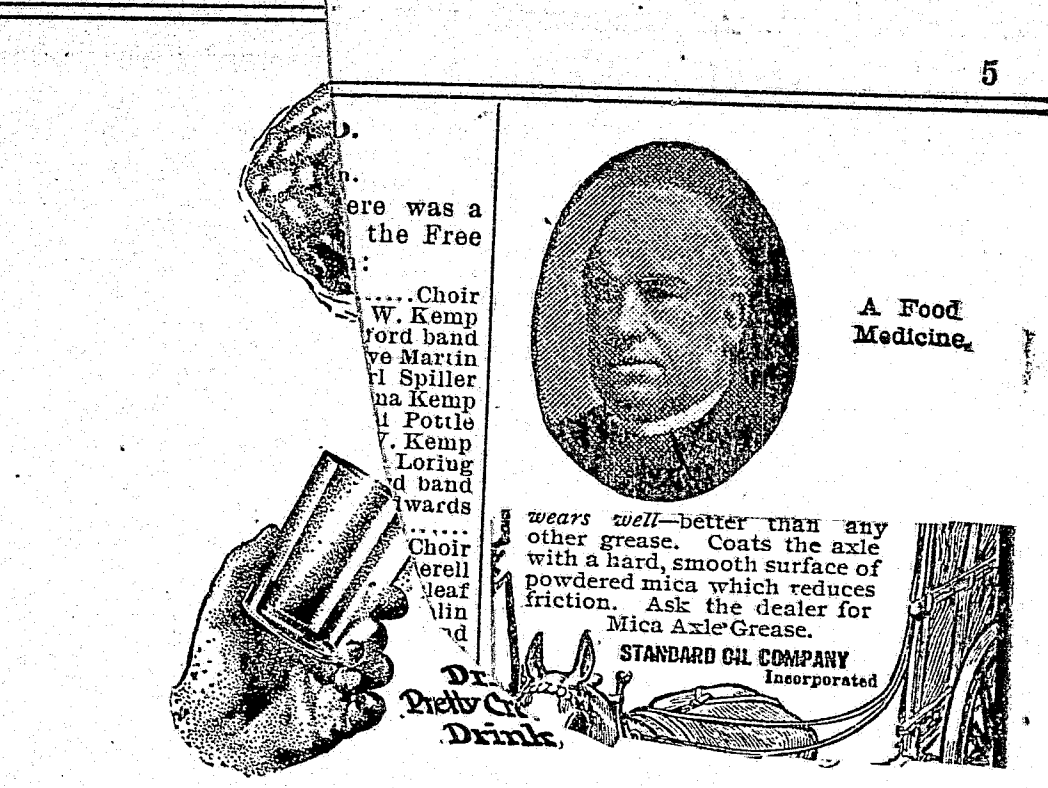

No answer.

"Honey, honey, let me in," she called again, rapping loudly.

Still no answer.

"For honey, honey, let me in," she called. There was silence for several moments, then a man's voice, cold and full of dignity, came from the other side of the door.

"Madam, this is not a bee hive, this is a bedroom."

Helped to Narrow the Road.

Uncle Ame Bryant Tells How the Grand Trunk Was Paved Down in '72.

Uncle Ame Bryant of Bryant's Pond took part in a railroad stunt in '72 which makes one realize that the much abused railroads really have accomplished some big things in 35 years.

Uncle Ame helped as he says, to "narrow" the Grand Trunk. It may surprise some folks to know that the Grand Trunk was originally built to a five foot gauge.

The result was endless trouble, both when the Grand Trunk cars were sent over other lines or strange cars were to be run on the Grand Trunk. Cars had to be specially constructed to meet the contingency, with loose wheels on one side so that they could be set over to fit whatever gauge might come their way.

These loose wheels were fastened with metal pins which were forever working loose and causing all manner of mishaps. Traffic was delayed, and the system was eventually found to be impracticable. Something had to be done about it.

Finally the wise ones got their heads together and agreed that the track would have to be narrowed. It would never do to suspend traffic while the herculean task was being accomplished. The wise ones talked and talked and finally hit upon a plan. Uncle Ame helped carry out that plan.

"Word came to us 'long in the spring of '72 that the old railroad was a-goin' to be narrowed," he said to a reporter for the Boston Globe. "That was good news, mister. The wide gauge was no good for nothing but trouble and expense, you bet."

"First thing we had to do of 'f see, was to unsnipe one rail all along the inside leavin' jest three spikes to hold her."

"At 4 p. m. we was already on the depot platform. Party soon along comes an engine with some flatcars to take us to our new positions. Mine was furthest from the depot."

"There you be," says the conductor, lettin' us off. "Now you wait right here until you see two trains pass with signs on the back cars, then get busy."

"Purty soon we heard a whistle an' along comes the eastbound, makin' things hum. 'Twa'n't a great while before we heard number two kiti'n' along 't'other way. By she whizzed in a cloud of smoke an' all orders. Stickin' out from the back platform we see the sign: 'Last train going west.'"

"Now jump, boys!" I hollered, an' they jumped some, I tell ye!

"They certainly did make them spikes fly!" One man held the gauge, two was armed with drawbars an' the rest had sledge hammers an' spikes. Those with the bars run along pullin' out the three spikes that held each rail, others slipped the rail over to the gauge an' the rest spiked down to every other tie.

"Mister, that was snappy work! In an hour we'd covered all but half a mile of our section an' had the finish in sight where another section had started."

SOUTH WATERFORD.

Mrs. B. H. Pike is much improved in health.

John Sanderson is visiting his sister, Mrs. Blanche Merrill.

Hiram Burnell and Winston Clark of Bridgton have been passing a few days at E. F. Kimball's.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Cheever have returned from Portland where they went to visit their daughter, Mrs. Chick.

Harold Kimball recently found on the shore of Bear pond three Indian relics. There is a stone gauge, a two stone fighting implements of some sort.

The Uncleanly Fly.

No words fit to print can describe the place where common house flies are born, their habits, and the real character of the microscopic dust she so industriously brushes from her wings and her limbs in our house, in our very dining-room, perhaps while standing on the food. This invisible dust from a fly's foot often contains the germs of disease and death.

There is but one safe rule—wage endless war on all the flies. Shut the screen door, and put a wheel lock on it to keep it shut. Screen every window in the entire house, inclose the piazza in screens, use every possible method to keep flies out of your house this summer, and kill every fly that gets into the house.

Buy fly paper if you must; but there are objections to its use, and if flies are so thick that fly paper must be used there must be some leak in your screens. If the named screens are too costly, use fly netting. For a kitchen window tack it on the outside of the window frame. For a casement window tack netting inside the window frame, leaving it full and loose at the bottom, to enable the hand to slip under it to open and close the window. The best screen of all is made of fine woven net, of bronze or painted wire.

Kill every fly on sight. When you enter or leave the house, take pains to see that flies do not slip in.

A new corporation has been formed to handle the Cornish fair, this season. The fair will be held the week before the Lewiston State Fair.
